Dear Mr. Kiriakou:

Thank you for making the changes required by the Publications Review Board. The Board has completed its review of your revised manuscript entitled "Citizen Spy" received on 7 April 2009 and determined that it contains no classified information and has no security objection to its publication. While the Board finds nothing further classified in this version of your manuscript, it recommends that you make the following change:

(b)(3) NatSecAct

If you further add material to or change the text the Board has approved for publication, you must submit these additions or changes to us before giving them to your publisher or anyone else. In such a case, please mark or otherwise clearly indicate the new material so we can expedite our review. Additional material that must be submitted includes, but is not limited to, photographs, photograph captions, illustrations, diagrams, tables, charts, or maps.

The Board noted that this version of your manuscript again includes your co-author's name. The Board removed the co-author language from the previous correspondence sent to you. However, this version of your manuscript indicated on your title page that you will have a co-author. Please be advised that Agency's regulations outline — to ensure that there is no confusion as to what was written by an author requiring Agency review and the specific text that has been approved for publication — how co-authored material is to be handled within the completed manuscript:

When it is contemplated that a co-author who has not signed a CIA secrecy agreement will contribute to a publication subject to prepublication review, the final version of the publication must clearly identify those portions of the publication that were authored by the individual subject to the secrecy agreement. Where there is any ambiguity concerning which individual wrote a section, and the section was not submitted for review, the Agency reserves the right to consider the section to be entirely written by the individual subject to the secrecy agreement and therefore in violation of the individual's prepublication review obligations.

We can provide practical guidance as to how your work can be differentiated from that written by your co-author. In any event, using individual chapters, different text, or in some other manner allowing a reader to know the text that has been subject to prepublication review will be required before we can provide our final approval for publication.

You must submit the galley proofs of the final manuscript as it will appear in book form so the Board can verify that the published version is the approved version. Your responsibility as the author is to ensure that the publisher publishes only the Board-approved version. Since this final review may take up to thirty days, please ensure that the publishing schedule permits adequate time for the Board to complete its work. The Board gives galley reviews high priority because it knows that authors and publishers have firm deadlines.

The Board requires that you include the following disclaimer in your book:

All statements of fact, opinion, or analysis expressed are those of the author and do not reflect the official positions or views of the CIA or any other U.S. Government agency. Nothing in the contents should be construed as asserting or implying U.S. Government authentication of information or Agency endorsement of the author's views. This material has been reviewed by the CIA to prevent the disclosure of classified information.

Please do not hesitate to contact the Publications Review Board at if you have any questions or if we can be of further assistance.
